(PX 1) JULY 23 - GOOD WEATHER EXPECTED FOR SPLASHDOWN - X marks the spot in this Nimbus Satellite weather photograph of the South Pacific where the historic Apollo 11 will splash down tomorrow. Scientists at General Electric Space Systems Organization in Philadelphia released this photo taken by satellite Tuesday evening. The photo shows some high clouds in the area but weathermen are predicting good weather conditions at time of splashdown. Johnston Island is shown circled some 425 miles northeast of the recovery area. (AP WIREPHOTO)(wgi41723ho)1969
