MOONLANDING OF APOLLO 15—HOUSTON, TEXAS

The Moonlanding climaxed a 3½ day flight plagued by minor technical problems. The latest was the inability of Astronauts Scott and Irwin to fly Falcon free of the command ship Endeavour, piloted by Worden, on the first try. Finally at 2:13 P.M. Falcon broke away and at 6:16 P.M. today landed on the rugged Apennine Mountains. Scott and Irwin reported all was well as they prepared for 3 unprecedented days of lunar exploration.
